EXCELLENCE IN SINGING

multilevel learning and multilevel teaching

VOLUME 1: Beginning the process

CELUMBRA
Redmond, WA

TABLE OF CONTENTS

Acknowledgements xiii

Author Notes xvii

Getting Around Excellence in Singing xix

Music xxii

International Phonetic Alphabet xxii

Introduction: Teaching and Learning at Multiple Levels 1

Teaching and Learning at Multiple Levels 3

Flexibility in Teaching and Learning 4

Flexibility in Noticing and Responding 4

Flexibility at Multiple Levels 5

Understanding the Voice at Multiple Levels 5

Chapter 1: Flexibility in teaching and learning 9

The Teaching Equation 10

Your Understanding of the Voice 11

Your Range of Responses 12

Your Student 13

Unpredictability 14

Your Relationship With Your Student 14

The Complete Teaching Equation 16

Successful Teaching 17
Stochastic Processes 20
Orienting Your Teaching To Stochastic Processes 23
The Stochastic Equation 27

Summary 32

EXERCISES 35

Exploring the Filter Side of the Stochastic Process 35
To Direct Your Student's Attention 35
To Interview Your Student 40
To Orient to Outcomes 42
Exploring the Random Elements of the Stochastic Process 45
To Cast Your Teaching Along a Continuum 45
To Expand Your Approaches 48

Chapter 2: Flexibility in Noticing and Responding 53

Noticing 55
Responding 58

EXERCISES 63

To Become More Aware of Your Student 63
To Explore What Is Possible for Your Student 67
To Explore Your Criteria for Ideal Teaching 69
To Assess Your Own Teaching 71
To Evaluate Your Presuppositions About Cause and Effect 72

Chapter 3: Flexibility at multiple levels 75

Learning at Multiple Levels for Singing with Excellence 77
Each Level Requires Different Learning and Different Teaching 82

Why Teaching and Learning Are Multilevel Processes 91
Teaching at Different Levels 96
How Many Levels Are There? 99
The Quality of Teaching and Learning 100
Developing Skills of Teaching at Different Levels 102

Implications of Multiple Levels 103

Setting a Standard for Excellence 108

EXERCISES 111

Orienting to Continuums 111
Creating Metaphors and Stories 112
Metaphors and Multiple Levels 113
To Cast the Student's Predicament into a Story 124
To Create the Metaphoric Space 126

Introduction: Understanding the voice at multiple levels 133

Understanding the Voice 134

Constructing a Point of View on How the Voice Works 136
The Body: the Vocal Instrument 138
The Air inside the Body 138
The Sound: the Interplay Between the Body and Air 139

Context of the Voice 139

Chapter 4: The body: the vocal instrument 141

The Air inside the Body 143
The Nervous System 144
The Muscular System 147

Functions of the Voice and Select Body Parts 148

Optimizing the Body for Excellence in Singing 150
Developing Flexibility In the Parts of the Voice 151
Coordinating the Parts that Control the Voice 151
Conditioning the Parts that Control the Voice 152
The Supportive Body 152
Posture and Body Movements 153
The Skeleton 154
Tension 155
Optimizing the Body to Support Singing 155
Breath 157
Airflow in and out of the Lungs 157
Major Body Parts in Breathing 158
Optimizing Breathing for Singing 164
Phonation 166
Cartilages of the Larynx 167
The Vocal Folds and the Intrinsic Muscles 169
The Interaction between the Tissues and the Air 175
Optimizing Phonation for Singing 181
Summary of Phonation 188
Resonance 189
The Major Body Parts that Control Resonance 190
Other Muscles that Influence Resonance 199
Optimizing Resonance for Singing 203
Summary of the Body 205

Chapter 5: The air inside the body 209

The Springiness of Air 210
Air in Motion 211
Air's Search for Equilibrium 214

Pressure 215
Disturbance 216
Oscillation 217
Sound Waves 219
Resonance 226
Vowels 227
The Ripples at the Lips or Nostrils 230
Summary 231
Pitch, Timbre, and Dynamic Levels 233
Chapter 6: The sound: The interplay between the body and air 233
Viewing a Sound with Multiple Descriptions 239
Source-Filter Theory 246
The Source 248
Filter 257
From Musical Sounds to the Inner Workings of the Voice 266
Appendix I: International Phonetic Alphabet i